NEW BLOGS

How valuable is your time?

"When it comes to technology, there are a lot of people who think they know what they're doing. More often than not, they end up wasting hours on end trying to figure out what they need to do to get their computers running efficiently.

When things don't work, often frustration mounts up until a fuse is blown and they finally succumb to calling for help.

Don't be one of those people!

It would be horrifying if you could count the time spent trying to find solutions for your IT issues.

Get it done right the first time so you can then concentrate on running your business efficiently, rather than muddling along with ineffective processes, or worse, antiquated equipment with ineffective processes."

Why should you backup?

1 Protection against hardware failure

Computers and other electronic devices can break down at any time. Regular backups ensure that if your computer fails, you won't lose all your important data.

2 Protection against malware

Computers and other electronic devices can break down at any time. Regular backups ensure that if your computer fails, you won't lose all your important data.

3 Protection against human error:

We've all done it – accidentally deleted an important file or made changes that we later regret. Regular backups allow you to undo these mistakes and restore your data to a previous state.

TESTIMONIAL Kay Schiller

That feeling of "Arghh, oh no!", was quickly erased.

Talking to Michael, and his knowledge made me realise I'd come to the right place to fix my computer.

Thank you so much for your help. Would recommend you guys to anyone. You know your stuff.
